For employees whose work week includes Saturday and Sunday (who have regularly scheduled days off other than Saturday and Sunday) their regularly scheduled days off shall be treated as “Saturday” and “Sunday” respectively for purposes of determining applicability of pay and overtime for observed holidays falling on their normal days off. For example, if the employee’s work week is Saturday through Wednesday, and the normal days off are Thursday and Friday, and a paid holiday falls on a Thursday, Thursday shall be considered like Saturday, and the “observed holiday” for such employee shall occur on Wednesday, and the provisions of Article III, Section 10 (g) shall apply to work on that day.

If the salary increase is withheld because of a below-standard or unsatisfactory evaluation, and the employee remains employed, second consideration must be given within six (6) months of the anniversary date and at least every six (6) month period thereafter or until the employee receives the merit increase or is terminated.

If the employee disagrees with the EPR, he/she shall have the right to discuss such grievance with his/her immediate supervisor as the first step. If not satisfied at the first step, he/she may discuss such grievance with the General Manager. Therefore, the EPR and the scores shall not be considered an action subject to the Grievance Procedure. An employee who is denied a Step increase shall, however, have the right to grieve such denial to his/her immediate supervisor, and if not satisfied with the supervisors decision on review, that decision may be reviewed by the General Manager, whose decision shall be final.
